ABSTRACT

Drawing primarily from a survey conducted by the American Association of Community Colleges in fall 1991, this two-part report provides a statistical portrait of the country's community, junior, and technical colleges on a state-by-state and institution-by-institution basis. The report details fall 1991 headcount enrollments, minority student enrollments, number of faculty and professional staff employed, and tuition and fee charges. Part 1 presents data for individual colleges, listed alphabetically by state. For each college, the following information is provided: name of the institution; city and zip code; name of the chief executive officer; type of control (public or private); fall 1991 headcount enrollment in credit classes (full-time, part-time, total, and minority); noncredit enrollment for academic year 1990-91; number of faculty teaching credit classes in fall 1991 (part-time, full-time, and total); number of professional staff employed in fall 1991; number of administrators employed in fall 1991; and annual tuition and required fees for academic year 1991-92. Part 2, presenting state-by-state summaries of selected data for both public and private institutions, includes the following information for each state: number of colleges; fall 1991 headcount enrollment in credit classes (full-time, part-time, and total); number of faculty employed in fall 1991 (full-time, part-time, and total); and fall 1991 minority student enrollment in public institutions. PREFACE

Numbers help tell the extraordinary story of community, technical, and junior college achievement. The number of students taking college credit classes at community colleges has increased steadily over the past four academic years, climbing from 4.6 million students in Fall 1985 to over 6.2 million students in Fall 1991. Community, technical, and junior colleges now enroll over 50 percent of all entering college freshmen. These institutions are particularly important gateways to higher education for traditionally underserved populations, including minorities and working adults. They enroll almost half (46 percent) of all minority students in higher education. In addition, most of their students (66 percent) are working students and are enrolled on a part-time basis, compared to slightly less than 30 percent of the students at four-year institutions. Women make up 55 percent of all community, technical, and junior college students.

Drawing primarily from AACC's Fall 1991 survey, this 1992 yearbook provides a statistical portrait of the colleges on a state-by-state and institution-by-institution basis. Designed as a ready reference source of pertinent data, this is the third volume of a set of three information resources published by AACC in 1992. The first volume, the 1992 AACC Membership Directory, provides a state-by-state listing of AACC-member colleges, detailing each college's address and phone number, the name of the chief executive officer, and other information such as the year the college was founded and its accreditation status. The second volume, AACC's Guide to Community, Technical, and Junior Colleges, lists all regionally accredited community, technical, and junior colleges and provides the names of key administrators at each institution.

This information series is an important part of AACC's effort to promote public understanding, recognition, and support for community, technical, and junior colleges. We are grateful to college personnel nationwide who have made this series possible by cooperating with AACC to gather the requisite data and information.

David Pierce
President and Chief Executive Officer

INTRODUCTION

Community, technical, and junior colleges constitute a large and diverse segment of American higher education. Approximately 1,200 of these institutions are regionally accredited, and their enrollments range from 43 students at John A. Gupton College in Tennessee to 525,337 students at the Community College of the Air Force. In total, these colleges enroll over six million students in credit classes, approximately 49 percent of all undergraduate students in the United States.

This Yearbook, AACC's sixty-third annual statistical report, summarizes selected findings from the Association's 1991 survey of these institutions. Included are data on Fall 1991 headcount enrollment, the number of minority students enrolled, the number of faculty and professional staff employed, and the tuition and fee charges. Besides college-by-college data summaries, the Yearbook also details selected state and national statistics.

Data on Individual Colleges

Part One of the Yearbook presents data for individual colleges listed by state. Individual institutions are listed alphabetically, with the exception of colleges within multicollege districts or campuses within multicampus colleges. For example, in the Illinois section, Wilbur Wright College is listed after the heading for the City Colleges of Chicago. Similarly, West Los Angeles College is found among the L's in California under the heading for the Los Angeles Community College District. In this way, data for districts and multicampus colleges are not scattered throughout the listings.

For each college, the Yearbook provides the following information:

- Name of the institution
- City and zip code
- Name of chief executive officer
- Type of control (public or private)
- Fall 1991 headcount enrollment in credit classes (full-time, part-time, total, minority)
- Fall 1990 headcount enrollment in credit classes (full-time, part-time, total, minority)
- Noncredit enrollment for academic year 1990-91
- Number of faculty teaching credit classes in Fall 1991 (part-time, full-time, total)
- Number of professional staff employed in Fall 1991
- Number of administrators employed in Fall 1991
- Annual tuition and required fees for academic year 1991-92

Few surveys yield a 100 percent response rate on all items, and blank spaces indicate areas in which individual colleges provided no data. For example, if college XYZ provided data for the total number of faculty but not for the number of full-time or part-time faculty, spaces for the latter are left blank. Also, blanks often appear under entries for multicampus colleges. In cases where aggregate data for the entire college were provided without breakdowns for individual campuses, data entries for the separate campuses are left blank. (For an example, see the entry for J. Sargeant Reynolds College, Virginia.) In other cases, data for the individual campuses are provided, but aggregate statistics are not. (See, for example, the entry for Central Community College, Nebraska.)

State Data

Part Two presents state-by-state summaries of selected data for both public and private institutions. Included for each state are:

- The number of colleges
- Fall 1991 headcount enrollment in credit classes (full-time, part-time, and total)
- The number of faculty employed in Fall 1991 (full-time, part-time, and total)
- Fall 1991 minority enrollment in public institutions

Total credit enrollment is the only item for which 100 percent response was received. The summary chart for public institutions that appears on pages 58 and 59 contains imputted numbers for 1991, part-time/full-time enrollments, faculty, and minority enrollments. The summary chart for private colleges that appears on pages 60 and 61 reflects actual reported numbers.
